Drug companies knowingly sold faulty products

Violations. U.S. FDA reports show Canadian drug firms changed, destroyed test data

Canadian pharmaceutical firms sold prescription drugs knowing some of their products were defective, an investigation by the Toronto Star has found.

Using records obtained through U.S. freedom of information laws, the Star also found Canadian companies hid, altered and sometimes destroyed test data showing products were tainted or potentially unsafe and in other cases did not report evidence of side-effects suffered by consumers taking their drugs.

Since 2008, more than 40 Canadian drug firms, including Toronto-based generic giant Apotex, have been cited for serious manufacturing violations — violations detailed in inspection reports provided to the Star by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which also inspects Canadian facilities. Health Canada meanwhile keeps details of problems its inspectors find secret.

Meanwhile, drugs and ingredients banned in the U.S. were allowed by Health Canada into Canadian pharmacies.

In June, at a facility in Bangalore, India, that makes drugs destined for North America, Apotex employees did not report undesirable test results and doctored bacterial growth test records.

Generic drug maker Taro Pharmaceuticals of Brampton kept drugs on the market despite tests showing batches of the medications deteriorated before the expiry date on the label.

Cangene Corp., of Winnipeg, failed to tell authorities of blood clots, fever and other side-effects associated with their products.

During an interview at one of Apotex's Toronto factories, and in email correspondence, company president and CEO Dr. Jeremy Desai and another manager did not challenge the FDA's findings and said the firm is fixing the problems and its products are safe.

"India is supplying Canada with medicines that the United States knows are adulterated. These are available in your pharmacies today for you," said Amir Attaran, a University of Ottawa law professor who has studied drug regulations.

In April, the FDA barred the importation of all but one product from another Apotex facility in Bangalore. Inspectors found the plant had manipulated data, re-tested samples until it got favourable results and destroyed records.

Person of interest sought in attempted 'grandpa scam'

Investigation. Unusual for target of fraud to be driven to bank, according to police

JOE LOFARO
joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

Ottawa police have released this video surveillance footage in relation to an attempted "grandparents scam" on Aug. 7, 2014. CONTRIBUTED

A 98-year-old Ottawa man, who was almost the victim of a common scam targeting the elderly, has a keen-eyed bank teller to thank for stopping a criminal in his tracks.

On Aug. 7, the elderly man received a phone call from a man claiming to be his grandson. The scammer said he was "in trouble" and needed money.

Staff Sgt. Stephanie Burns with the Ottawa Police Organized Fraud unit said the person who called the older man sent a driver to his home, who then accompanied him into a bank on Carling Avenue in the city's west end.

Burns said the teller started asking questions when the pair walked in.

"In this case, she just felt that there was something that wasn't right, and she was right," said Burns. "So it was her intervention that prevented any monetary loss of this gentleman."

Police have released a still from video surveillance footage from inside the bank showing the 98-year-old man with the person who drove him to the bank. Police are calling the latter a person of interest and are seeking the public's help in identifying him.

"We're not sure what his involvement is at this time. All we know is we would like to identify him and speak to him about what happened that day," Burns said.

She said it's not common in these types of "grandparents scams" for someone to send a driver to pick up the potential victim.

"It's rare and it's troubling," said Burns. "This is a poor old soul who thinks his grandson is in trouble and wants to help."

Journalist's vivid memoir premieres on Ottawa stage

The Boy in the Moon. GCTC play opening Sept. 16 offers window into family's struggle to care for, and bond with, disabled son

LUCY SCHOLEY
lucy.scholey@metronews.ca

Ian Brown would wake up in the middle of night to the sounds of his 11-year-old son grunting as he hit himself repeatedly in the head.

Walker Brown has a rare genetic disorder, called cardiofaciocutaneous syndrome. Because of this, he has the brain capacity of a two-year-old. He can't talk or swallow and wears arm braces to protect himself from his own punches.

Globe and Mail readers may be familiar with the journalist's powerful stories about his son, which he turned into his 2010 book, The Boy in the Moon.

A play based on Brown's work will premiere at the Great Canadian Theatre Company Sept. 16.

Brown and his wife, Johanna Schneller, will be in Ottawa on opening night. But Brown admits he was hesitant when playwright Emil Sher approached him to write a play.

"I was very concerned that giving (Walker's) story to somebody else who had not lived with him, had not understood him, had not been his dad, had not seen him be a brother, seen him be a son — they might not understand him enough," he says.

But being familiar and comfortable with Sher's work, Brown says he decided to offer Walker's perspective, he says.

"Walker, he has no voice. He has a point of view and he has a presence and I think he has a significance and a meaning in the world," says Brown. "For his voice to come out, it has to come out through others. There might be other people who could interpret him, who could give voice to him, who could provide the conduit."

Although a tough story to read, the play has its lighter moments. Director Eric Coates says it's directly from the book and through Sher's interviews with the family.

"The overriding tone of the piece is one of honesty," he says.

"Most of the play is delivered directly to the audience (in) unflinching, uncompromising statements about their struggle."

Peter James Haworth, who plays Ian Brown, says he and Manon St. Jules are less concerned with perfectly capturing Brown and Schneller than about telling their story.

"Our job is to act as a kind of glass through which you can see his book," he says.

Walker is now 18 and lives in an assisted living home. He's bigger now, more robust, and has a longer attention span.

But he still hits himself when upset and bursts into giggling fits when he's happy.

He visits his parents for three days every two weeks.

When he's home, Brown takes him for walks, pushing the chair with his elbows so he can lean over and talk to him.

"He can't partake in a conversation because he can't talk, but he loves to be treated as if he can," says Brown. "He becomes thrilled and loves that and really notices the world."

The Boy in the Moon will run from Sept. 16 to Oct. 5.

Sprott School of Business to get new home after $10-million gift

Hefty donation. 'The school is getting so big that there wasn't enough room for all of the students,' says generous donor

TREVOR GREENWAY
trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

Business students at Carleton University were cheering Thursday morning, as the Wesley and Mary Nicol Charitable Foundation announced a $10-million gift to Sprott School of Business to be used toward a brand new building.

The cash will help give the business school its own building — something that is a long time coming, said student Joshua Bissessar.

"We were cooped up in Dunton Tower before and we are just getting bigger every year," said Bissessar, who added that he was surprised at the announcement.

He said a new building will make it easier and more efficient for business students, especially fourth-year students, to study.

"All of our classes were split up between all of the different buildings, so there was a lot of time wasted going in between. All of the classes are going to be in the same area. As a community, it's going to bring us all closer together."

The donor, Wesley Nicol, is a former Carleton law grad. Nicol said he has more money than he can spend and wanted to give back to the school that gave him such an "enjoyable time" when he was studying.

"As you retire, what can you do with all that extra money? You can get a yacht or do this or that," he said. "The school is getting so big that there wasn't enough room for all of the students; they didn't have a proper building."

Ottawa Mayor Jim Watson, also a Carleton grad, was all smiles during the announcement and roared to the crowd that Carleton was "the best university in Canada."

He said the new home for the Sprott School of business will complement an already booming business city.

"We have the most number of startups coming out of Ottawa than any city in Canada on a per capita basis," said Watson. "This is going to go a long way."

Planning for the building is still in the early stages and a site has not yet been selected.

Is Ottawa International Film Festival getting bigger, bolder ... nuder?

An R-rated movie would not have opened the Ottawa International Film Festival five years ago.

But this year's OIFF is starting with the nudity- and gore-filled Girlhouse, a Halloween slasher about a money-strapped college student who pays for tuition by moving into a house that streams lewd content online. Ottawa's own Trevor Matthews directed the film.

"I would have been terrified," said OIFF founder Nina Bains, about whether she would have opened the festival with an R-rated film five years ago. "I think that would be bold. But, it's our fifth year. We're big and we're bold."

It's far from the bigness of the Toronto International Film Festival, but Bains said Ottawa's version is not so much about bringing Hollywood to the city as it is about pumping up Canadian filmmakers and the city's fledgling film industry. Thirty per cent of the films screened are Canadian-made.

Lazar gets first chance to live up to expectations

First-round pick. As rookie camp heads to London tourney, the 19-year-old tries to make the leap to a Senators star

trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

There may have been more than 20 skaters on the ice Thursday afternoon for the Ottawa Senators' rookie training camp, but most observers' eyes were on 19-year-old Curtis Lazar.

The Sens' first-round draft pick in 2013 (17th overall) wants to turn heads at this weekend's rookie tournament in London with the hopes that he will don an Ottawa Senators' jersey when the team takes on the Nashville Predators to open the season Oct. 9.

"I want to be here, I want to be an Ottawa Senator, that is my primary goal," said Lazar following the team's first rookie practice Thursday at the Bell Sensplex.

"I feel good. There are still some nerves and a little excitement, so I am trying to get that out and be ready to play some actual games this weekend."

The team travels to London, Ont., this weekend to play their rookie counterparts from Toronto, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Nerves aside, the young prospect, who led the Western Hockey League's Edmonton Oil Kings to a Memorial Cup championship last season, says he will embrace this weekend's rookie tournament.

He says he is hoping to impress those who will ultimately make the decision on whether he stays in Ottawa or goes back to develop more with the Western Hockey League's Edmonton Oil Kings.

"It's another hockey game," he said. "I'll go out there and have fun and I'll be smiling out there."

Senators' assistant general manager Randy Lee said Lazar's complete game is what will give him a chance at cracking the lineup this October.

"We just want Curtis to be Curtis," said Lee. "He's a very competitive guy.

"He always plays right; he's always in the right spot. He's good defensively, he's good without the puck and can contribute offensively."

The Senators' rookie tournament opens Saturday at 2 p.m. against the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Sens' notes

After three seasons working in scouting and as a development consultant, Jason Smith will now be part of the Senators' coaching staff, working primarily with the team's defencemen.

Former Senator Shean Donovan was hired as a player development consultant and will work with the Senators, the AHL's Binghamton Senators and the ECHL Evansville IceMen coaching staff.

Assistant GM Randy Lee

Turning a centre into a right-winger

Lazar has played the majority of his career at centre, but should he make the Senators, it would likely be as a right-winger.

"We think it would be best suited for us if he was a winger," said Senators' assistant general manager Randy Lee.

"He's really good along the walls, but the fact that he can play both is great. The fact that he can take faceoffs is great, but he is very good along the walls and he's always in the right position.

"He's a very dependable player so he'll have no problem playing on the wing.

"If a centre position opened up, we would have no problem putting him there."

Pistorius cleared of murder, but prison still a possibility

South Africa. Olympian may be found guilty of culpable homicide, as judge says he 'acted too hastily and with excessive force' on night his girlfriend was killed

The judge in Oscar Pistorius' trial ruled out a murder conviction for the double-amputee Olympian Thursday in the shooting death of his girlfriend, but said he was negligent, raising the possibility he'll be convicted of culpable homicide.

The verdict is expected today when Judge Thokozile Masipa reconvenes the judgment phase, climaxing the trial that began in March.

Although found not guilty of pre-meditated murder, Pistorius could still be sent to jail for up to 15 years for culpable homicide.

Masipa said she felt Pistorius acted negligently when he fired four times through a bathroom door in his home in the pre-dawn hours of Valentine's Day last year.

"I am of the view that the accused acted too hastily and with excessive force," Masipa said of Pistorius' actions on the fatal night.

She said the prosecution had not proven beyond a reasonable doubt that Pistorius committed premeditated murder. She also ruled out a lesser murder charge. As she spoke, Pistorius began sobbing quietly on the wooden bench, his shoulders shaking.

"Did the accused fail to take steps he should have taken? Yes," Masipa said. "He failed to take any steps to avoid the death."

If Pistorius is convicted on any charge, the case will be postponed until a later sentencing hearing.

Sentenced. Canadian gets 4 years for kidnapping his kids, hiding them in Mexico

A Canadian man who kidnapped his two kids and hid them in Mexico has been sentenced to four years in prison.

Kevin Maryk of Winnipeg pleaded guilty in June to kidnapping his children in 2008 and keeping them in a heavily guarded home for four years.

Judge Ted Lismer said Maryk abused his position of trust and deprived the children of their mother and of a normal childhood.

"(Maryk) subjected them to live behind locked doors, barbed wire and surveillance cameras," Lismer said in his decision Thursday.

"He gravely abused them psychologically in depriving them, for four years, of a normal school education and association with other children."

The judge gave Maryk credit for time served, which leaves just over a year on the sentence.

The Crown had asked for five years behind bars, saying Maryk didn't allow the boy and girl to go to school and forced them to live as virtual prisoners in a heavily guarded house.

Kevin Maryk THE CANADIAN PRESS

The defence, arguing Maryk made a mistake based on concern for his children, wanted his immediate release based on credit for time served in Canada and Mexico.

Maryk took his children from his former wife, Emily Cablek, during a court-ordered visit on Aug. 16, 2008, shortly after Cablek was awarded custody. At the time, Abby was about to turn six and Dominic was seven. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ford's biopsy results won't be known for another week

2 p.m. deadline. If Rob Ford is to pull out of the race for mayor, or Doug Ford enters, the deadline is Friday

Toronto's Mount Sinai hospital says the results of the biopsy of a tumour found in Mayor Rob Ford's abdomen will not be known for another week.

The 45-year-old politician was first hospitalized Wednesday after seeking treatment for "unbearable" abdominal pain.

Doctors found a "fair-sized" tumour in his abdomen.

Dr. Zane Cohen, a colorectal surgeon at Mount Sinai Hospital, said Ford is resting comfortably and has some pain, for which he's receiving medication.

Ford had abdominal surgery in 2009 to remove a tumour on his appendix. His father, Doug Ford Sr., died of colon cancer in 2006.

Rice zapped by his old high school

Ray Rice's suburban New York high school has removed his NFL jersey from its wall of fame.

The Journal News reports that New Rochelle High School also removed a placard honouring Rice from a hallway.

The Baltimore Ravens released Rice, and the NFL suspended him indefinitely on Monday after video surfaced of him punching his then-fiancée in a casino elevator.

New Rochelle students say Rice has been generous with his time and money. Rice has donated uniforms and equipment. But Athletic director Steve Young says removing the Rice jersey sends a message that "actions like this have consequences."

Sears class action lawsuit to proceed

A lawsuit against Sears Canada and its U.S. counterpart by its Hometown Store dealers has been granted class action status by an Ontario court.

The suit by more than 250 current and former operators of Sears Hometown Stores allege Sears Canada and Sears Roebuck and Co. made it "virtually impossible" for them to operate their stores profitably.

The dealers allege that Sears lowered commissions, reduced advertising for local stores and bypassed the franchises by selling directly to customers. They also claim Sears set their compensation and work conditions without abiding by laws.

The allegations have not been proven in court.

ISIS. U.S. may find itself in 'a tricky situation' in striking at Islamic group

In expanding its airstrikes into Syria against extremists from the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS), the U.S. may entangle itself in a storm of jihadis and rebel rivalries.

Unlike Iraq, the U.S. has no firm allies in Syria to take over areas if fighters from ISIS are pushed back. Unless the West decisively backs the outgunned moderate rebels, it risks the unintended consequence of prolonging the widely discredited rule of President Bashar Assad.

U. S. President Barack Obama said Wednesday that in the fight against ISIS, his country "cannot rely on an Assad regime that terrorizes its own people — a regime that will never regain the legitimacy it has lost."

"Instead, we must strengthen the opposition as the best counterweight to extremists like ISIL, while pursuing the political solution necessary to solve Syria's crisis once and for all," Obama said, referring to ISIS by another of its acronyms.

But to do so is complicated. In the northern and eastern parts of Syria where ISIS controls territory, the region is war-torn following three years of conflict, ripe with various loyalties and rivalries.

Further complicating any efforts, ISIS may be hiding assets and fighters among civilians, making it difficult for the U.S. to carry out military actions.

"A tricky situation is going to be how the U.S. will ensure that it is only ISIS targets that are hit, rather than civilians and others," said Haras Rafiq of the Quilliam Foundation, a London-based think-tank.

The U.S. would most likely target supply lines and heavy weapons to erode the group's power, rather than wiping it out, said Eliot Higgins, who analyzes weapons used in Syria. "It's really about targeting the stuff they can't hide easily."

Higgins added he believes the U.S. was unlikely to attack militants where there are civilians, as it would give ISIS a propaganda victory.

Safe and sound. After two weeks of captivity, UN troops returned safely by Syria's Nusra Front militant group

Al-Qaida-linked Syrian militants on Thursday released all 45 Fijian peacekeepers they had held captive for two weeks, bringing an end to a crisis that ensnared the UN monitoring force in the chaos of Syria's civil war.

Fighters from the Nusra Front captured the Fijian troops Aug. 28 on the Syrian-controlled side of Golan Heights, a disputed buffer zone between Israel and Syria.

The peacekeepers are reported to have been returned in good condition and were undergoing quick medical exams, a UN statement said.

The hostage crisis raised questions about the future of the UN's decades-old Golan mission, with participating nations threatening to pull their troops from Syria due to the escalating violence.

UN Deputy Spokesman Farhan Haq said they were released on the Syrian side of the Quneitra crossing point near Israel into Israeli-controlled Golan territory. UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon welcomed the peacekeepers' release and thanked all involved in negotiating their return. One unidentified peacekeeper expressed relief upon being released.

"We're all very happy to be safe and alive," he told the Israeli channel.

No shortage of can-do spirit during Kickstarter's first year

Happy anniversary. Crowdfunding website marks a successful Year 1 in Canada

LUKE SIMCOE
Metro Online

One year, 3,650 projects, 239,591 backers and $24 million in pledges: That's the story of Kickstarter's first year in Canada.

Launched in the U.S. in 2009, the popular crowdfunding platform made itself available to Canuck fund-seekers on Sept. 9, 2013. Since then, the site has helped fund an average of 10 Canadian projects per day, ranging from a Corner Gas reboot to a high-tech hockey stick.

"When we launched ... we were available to anyone in the world in terms of backers, and early on Canada turned out to be a very active place where people were pledging money from," said Kickstarter spokesperson Justin Kazmark. "And Canada has a significant creative population, so expanding there was a natural fit."

The service has been a launching pad for Canadian companies, granting them access to international customers and capital. Although domestic support for Canadian projects is high, most ideas receive two-thirds of their funding from outside the country's borders.

"I think it signifies that internationally, people have an appetite for supporting creative ideas coming out of Canada," Kazmark said.

To date, the most-funded project on Canadian Kickstarter is Vanhawks' Valour bicycle, a "smart bike" made of carbon fibre and equipped with features like GPS and haptic feedback. The Ottawa-based company turned to Kickstarter last May and raised more than $820,000.

"We were out there looking for funding to launch our bike, and Kickstarter allowed us to take a peek into the market and prove there's a massive demand out there," said Vanhwaks co-founder Ali Zahid. "It's going to change the whole ecosystem of how people get funded and start companies in Canada."

Although they believed in their product, Zahid and his colleagues were still shocked at how quickly their Kickstarter took off.

"It was a crazy experience," he said. "I didn't sleep for two weeks. We got so many press requests and questions that my phone died in the first 10 minutes."

Another Canadian success story is Aesthetec Studio's Little Robot Friends, a set of cute, anthropomorphic circuit boards that help teach people about electronics and computer programming. The project attracted more than 1,300 backers from 49 different countries, and raised more than $123,000.

Aesthetec's Mark Argo said that, like Vanhawks, Kickstarter allowed his company to gauge demand for their product, but more importantly, it let them bring that product to market in a way they were comfortable with.

"We wanted to do it right the first time, and worry about making money off it later," Argo said. "With a lot of tech products, the way you make money is to outsource as much as possible ... to places like China. But when you have this upfront source of risk-free money, it gives you the motivation — and the ability — to deliver the best thing you possibly can.

"And if that means using more expensive local labour and materials, then so be it."

As a result, every Little Robot Friend is hand-built in Toronto, using local materials from factories that Argo and his colleagues have visited.

Like Zahid, Argo believes Kickstarter can help Canadian companies achieve success without leaving home.

"There's tons of talented people here, but a lot of them have to flee the country to find opportunity," he said. "But we found that we can make something here locally in Canada, enjoy the benefits of living here and still reach a global community ... We might not be able to sell 50,000 robots in Canada, but spread that around the globe and I'm sure there's 50 niche communities willing to buy 1,000 robots."

1 Do your homework. Before Vanhawks launched their Kickstarter campaign, company co-founder Ali Zahid said he spent three months immersed on the platform, analyzing what worked and what didn't. "Kickstarter became a religion," he said.

2 Make a video. "You don't need a video to launch a project, but most successful ones have a video," Kickstarter spokesman Justin Kazmark said, "often with the creator in front of the camera."

3 Tell a story that involves your backers. "Successful projects on Kickstarter, regardless of geography, tell a compelling story.... They articulate what you're trying to bring to life and how backers can join you on that journey," said Kazmark.

4 Be honest. "Our pitch wasn't some slick advertisement for a product. It was true to who we are," said Aesthetec Studio's Mark Argo. "We wanted to give The Vanhawks team kept a blog throughout the process and Zahid even offered his cellphone number to backers in case they had questions or suggestions. "I used to get calls at 3 a.m., but people loved it," he said.

5 Be prepared to follow through. "Make sure it's something you love, because if you do get backed, you have to make it," Argo said. off this feeling that we're a small group of passionate makers and that this is an idea that's important to us ... And afterwards a lot of people commented that they liked the tone of our pitch and our video."

Customers shrug at latest data breach

'Here we go again.' Reaction to Home Depot's big breach is getting a small reaction from jaded consumers

Home Depot's data breach could wind up being among the largest ever for a retailer, but that may not matter to its millions of customers.

America's largest home-improvement chain on Monday confirmed a theft that could have gone back as far as April and affected customers who used credit and debit cards at nearly 2,200 of its U.S. and Canadian stores. While the scope of the hack is not yet known, there's speculation that it could be the biggest yet.

Home Depot joins a growing list of retailers that have had their data stolen. Perhaps the most high-profile of those previous hacks was at Target, which suffered profit and sales declines after shoppers fled following a breach that compromised 40 million debit and credit card accounts. Industry watchers are betting Home Depot will fare better with its customers.

Stores hit

Home Depot confirmed Monday a theft that could have gone back as far as April and affected customers who used credit and debit cards at nearly 2,200 of its U.S. and Canadian stores.

"It's simply not a big issue with consumers," said Craig Johnson, president of retail consultancy Customer Growth Partners, noting that shoppers seem to be almost immune to the breaches now. "Everybody knows that this is not people's first rodeo."

Take Johnna Horn. She stopped shopping at Target for two months after its breach was disclosed. Yet when she heard the news about Home Depot, she wasn't alarmed.

"With Target, it was more shocking," said Horn, who lives in Wentzville, Mo. "With Home Depot, it's like, 'Here we go again.' "

To be sure, analysts say it's too early to estimate the impact the breach will have on Home Depot's business because there are many details that are unknown. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Get those loonies ready; Dollarama to add more stores

Discount retailer Dollarama says it plans to stick with its winning formula as its expands to 1,200 stores over the coming years by not offering more lower-margin grocery or pharmaceutical items. "For me, the future is the present. I'm very happy with our offering today," CEO Larry Rossy said Thursday, during a conference call to discuss its second-quarter results. Dollarama reported its profit increased 15.3 per cent from a year ago to $68.8 million, on a 12-per-cent boost in sales. The Montreal-based company said same-store sales — a key retail measure that reflects sales at stores that have been open for at least a year — were up 4.2 per cent year-over-year. Nearly two-thirds of sales came from products priced higher than $1, up from 61.7 per cent a year ago.

CRTC. Rogers on board with offering a smaller basic package to viewers

One of the country's biggest cable-service providers predicts a sea change in how Canadians get their TV programming, but rejects the idea of allowing viewers to pay for television channels one at a time.

Rogers Communications has told the country's broadcast regulator it agrees with a proposal to offer its customers a smaller basic service.

But it says the price for that service should not be capped and it should include channels from the major American TV networks, not just the Canadian ones.

Rogers' presentation to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission on Thursday highlighted the growing divergence among cable and satellite TV service providers on how to reshape the television landscape.

It also helped to reveal the complexity of the job faced by the CRTC in figuring out how to regulate the broadcasting system while providing consumers with more choice and possibly lower costs.

Rogers said while it agrees with a proposal to offer a smaller basic service, it can't leave out the U.S. networks.

Health. Pharmacist writes scrip: No more pop, sugary drinks sold at his N.S. store

A pharmacist in Cape Breton, N.S., is no longer selling soft drinks or other sugary beverages in his store, saying as a health professional he can't condone the sale of one of the top contributing substances to child obesity.

Graham MacKenzie announced the change Thursday, saying it's time for him and his team at Stone's Pharmasave to back up the advice they give clients in one-on-one consultations.

"We were telling people (to) stay away completely from pop and stay away from juice," he said. "In all good conscience, we could not be having people walk by these things as they're walking out the door."

MacKenzie said he'll be taking a look at everything he sells, including chocolate bars and chips, but said sugary drinks such as fruit juices and vitaminwater were first to go because of how widely parents — mistakenly thinking they're healthy — give them to kids.

MacKenzie announced the change on the store's Facebook page and Twitter account, and said the response on Thursday was positive. Nova Scotia's Chief Public Officer of Health said MacKenzie deserved to be "commended and congratulated."

1 Baby-in-waiting. Prince William once again implanted his majestic seed within the Duchess of Cambridge. "Li'l Willie" was bursting with excitement over Kate's fertile blessing. Will his graciousness be there to bind her noble tresses? Will his band of oppressive autocrats grant her the rightful leave of maternity? Sorry, I just get caught up in this game of thrones. #RoyalBaby

2 Getting served. Serena Williams joined the ranks of Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert by winning her 18th #GrandSlam on Sunday. The two legends speculated that Williams would continue to smash every record in tennis. I agree.

3 Knockout. Mike Tyson was in Toronto to promote his one-man show, The Undisputed Truth, but wasn't ready to face off with CP 24's Nathan Downer. From the bell, the host came out swinging, referring to the former champ as a convicted rapist. Tyson returned with a barrage of low blows, including unacceptable language on live TV. After the second warning, the towel was tossed and the man with the face tattoo was disqualified. Tyson received another blow with a poor showing at his debut, so the TKO goes to Downer, whose name has been uttered more in the last 24 hours than, well, ever.

4 Phablet Phever. Apple unleashed iPhone 6, and social media lit up with conflicting opinions about larger screen size. Then came the Apple Watch revelation, but techies say it's too small. I'm waiting for the day I'll need my Google Glass to see my Apple watch remind me to take my iPills so I can have sex with my iWife, smoke an e-cigarette, and search my iPad for schedules to program on Apple TV before I take out my e-teeth, get under my iBlanket and go to sleep.

5 Son of a ... Adam Cohen, son of Canadian music icon Leonard, releases his new CD this week. The singer-songwriter is his own artist, but the quality of his voice is unmistakably patrimonial. Recorded partly at dad's long-standing vacation home on the Greek island of Hydra, and at Adam's childhood home in Montreal, he called it, We Go Home. Such inspiration is not lost on me as this column was written both here and in my villa on Mount Olympus. Catch the title track on YouTube. #WeGoHome

6 Can we talk? There was little privacy surrounding the "private" funeral held for Joan Rivers last Sunday. And that's probably just how Joan would have wanted it. The memorial looked like the Tonys with appearances by Hugh Jackman, Bernadette Peters, and Whoopi Goldberg. Except for the collective realization the world had lost an icon so impactful, she was there the first time you, your children, AND your parents ever turned on a TV. She will be missed.

9/11 remembered amid a changing ground zero

Americans marked the 13th anniversary Thursday of the Sept. 11 terror attacks, with a New York ceremony held in new surroundings.

For the first time, the new National September 11 Museum — which includes gut-wrenching artifacts and graphic photos of the attacks — is open on the attacks' anniversary. Fences have come down, integrating the site more fully with the streets, while completely opening it up to the public and camera-wielding tourists.

The ceremony itself would be familiar. A solemn reading of the names. Moments of silence to mark the precise times of tragedy. Stifled sobs of those still mourning.

But much has changed since that fateful day in 2001. A new mayor is in office, one far less linked to the attacks and their aftermath than his immediate predecessors. And a nearly completed One World Trade Center has risen 1,776 feet.

Crime drama 'drops' the plot

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

metro AR Scan this photo with your Metro News app to watch a clip from The Drop, starring Tom Hardy and James Gandolfini. CONTRIBUTED

The Drop. Tom Hardy and James Gandolfini bring strong, nuanced acting to their roles, but it's not enough to save a tired story that seems full of holes

Richard: Steve, this is a boy-and-his-dog story, but it ain't Old Yeller.

Sure there are gun shots and a cute dog, but there is also a slow unveiling of the clues, red herrings and characters with shady pasts.

As Bob, Hardy is a cypher; kind to dogs, shy and lovesick, he's an average neighbourhood guy.

Except in this neighbourhood, average guys have pasts, and Hardy does a nice job of playing a guy who is trying to move on while the past tries to stop him in his tracks.

What did you think?

Steve: As the deadbeat bartender who may or may not be what he seems, Hardy certainly crafts a compelling character with a unique set of subtleties.

Even the gait of Bob's walk and the curious physicality of Hardy's character is distinguished and fantastically nuanced.

It's just too bad the story itself feels a bit too played out.

There's nothing quite fresh about the intertwining local gangsters and interlopers here.

Plus, a few plot ambiguities don't help keep the story clear. Or was that the red herrings?

RC: I thought of it as a slice of life, a slickly made look at the underbelly of crime, relationships and dog rearing.

Nice performances make up for some plot idiosyncrasies and the cute dog earns some goodwill for a story that doesn't so much comment on the condition of its characters as it does reveal it.

What did you think of Gandolfini in his final role?

SG: It's a bit of a bittersweet final curtain for Gandolfini — whose character is a bit morose.

But the late actor's presence is as bold as ever and, in scenes with Hardy, the two of them burn up the celluloid — especially in the movie's softer moments — as when Bob corrects the burly former bar owner about the proper pronunciation of "Chechen."

Surprisingly, the film is actually darkly humorous.

RC: Gandolfini does play to type as the Tony Soprano-Lite bar owner and while it is a part he could play in his sleep, there is something comforting about seeing him, one last time, as a conflicted tough guy. And you're right, the movie is darkly humorous, until it turns rather dark at the end.

SG: It was also a bit anticlimactic for me.

For all the mystery built up around the characters, the not-so-surprising twist at the end tries too conveniently to wrap everything together.

The film is entertaining enough but it doesn't quite add up.

Synopsis

Tom Hardy plays Bob Saginowski, a mild-mannered bartender at Cousin Marv's — a Brooklyn neighbourhood pub owned by the Chechnyan mafia. Marv's bar is sometimes used as a "drop," a place where gangsters secretly hide money until it is collected by their crime bosses. One night after work, Bob hears a dog whimpering from inside a garbage can. Lifting the lid, he finds a beaten pit bull puppy. He adopts the dog and romances Nadia, (Noomi Rapace), the woman who helps him rescue the animal, but soon a robbery, a scheme by his boss Marv (James Gandolfini) and the dog's former owner (Matthias Schoenaerts) force Bob to show his true colours. Steve Gow sits in for Mark Breslin this week.

Sequel. Star-studded cast hopes to recreate the magic of Now You See Me

Jesse Eiseinberg is returning for another round of magic in Now You See Me 2. CONTRIBUTED

With over $350 million in revenues worldwide, Now You See Me was one of the surprise hits of the summer 2013 box office. The follow-up, Lionsgate announced, is scheduled to open on June 10, 2016.

Directed by Louis Leterrier, Now You See Me follows a team of four magicians known for performing international bank heists live on stage and transferring the proceeds to the audience.

Fans can look forward to seeing more of the same all-star cast, as Woody Harrelson, Jesse Eiseinberg, Dave Franco, Isla Fisher, Mark Ruffalo, Morgan Freeman and Michael Caine are all expected to return for the sequel.

Written like the first movie by Ed Solomon and Peter Chiarelli, Now You See Me 2 is to be helmed by John M. Chu (G.I. Joe: Retaliation) and produced by Alex Kurtzman, Roberto Orci and Bobby Cohen.

Lionsgate also revealed Dec. 25, 2015 as the release date for Dirty Grandpa, the comedy starring Robert De Niro and Zac Efron. AFP

The doctor is in ... his taxi cab

Cabbie conundrum. Comedy takes a lighthearted look at a serious problem that highly educated immigrants across Canada face

Vinay Virmani stars in Dr. Cabbie, which opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

In Dr. Cabbie, Vinay Virmani stars as Deepak, a man from New Delhi, who arrives in Toronto with a degree in medicine and dreams of following in his MD father's footsteps. Instead he is met with bureaucracy and frustration. The medical establishment in Canada doesn't accept his hard-earned degree and decree that he won't be able to practice medicine in his new country.

Virmani was inspired to write the story after taking a cab ride in Toronto.

"When you get into a cab, you form that Indian-to-Indian thing," he says. "The driver is like, 'Where are you from?'

"Canada."

'No, where are you really from?'

"It always starts off like that. Then he told me his story. I was really moved by it because here's a guy who was young and naïve when he came here, very passionate about being a doctor, and had that dream shattered.

"Then I heard about a Chinese dentist in Vancouver who was doing dental work for families who couldn't afford dental. They called him the Bedroom Dentist. So all these things played in my head."

In the film, a friend (Big Bang Theory's Kunal Nayyar) gets Deepak a job driving a cab, and one eventful night he meets Natalie, the girl of his dreams (Adrianne Palicki), and delivers her baby in the back of the hack.

When a video of the birth goes viral he becomes a something of a sensation. Soon people are flagging his taxi, looking for medical treatment.

With a thriving practice on wheels, he doles out medical advice and prescription drugs to customers from the back of his cab.

Quoted

"Through the fun and games, and the loud characters and situations, we say a doctor is a doctor is a doctor — that the Hippocratic Oath does not change just because you cross a border."
Actor Vinay Virmani

"If somebody told me a cabbie delivered a baby in a cab I would want to see that," he says.

"I would want to see how he did it. It's not far fetched to believe a video like that would go viral."

The movie is a broad comedy, but one with serious underpinnings.

"Right now we do have a doctor shortage in this country, we do have qualified PhDs not only driving cabs, but doing all sorts of work," he says, "and I really hope the movie sheds light on that, but in a fun, comedic way.

"I hope we've given integrity to the issue.

"Through the fun and games and the loud characters and situations, we say a doctor is a doctor is a doctor — that the Hippocratic Oath does not change just because you cross a border."

Breaking Bad star Mitte brings realism to disabled characters

Typecasting. Actor with cerebral palsy says he learns from roles that reflect his reality

For RJ Mitte, playing Walter White Jr. in AMC's Breaking Bad was art imitating life.

Like the 22-year-old actor, his character had cerebral palsy — just a more severe case, requiring Mitte to learn to walk on crutches and slow his speech for the role. Mitte says he also had to revisit some of the challenges he faced growing up, which served as "a great reminder" that helped him win the part.

"The past does haunt you, but it haunts you for a reason: To remind you of the mistakes and actions you've made along the way and you have to grow from those actions," he said.

Mitte says those experiences enabled him to bring something to the role that others couldn't.

"My disability has given me so many things that people will never understand unless you have it," he said in a recent interview. "Unless you've been through the physical therapy, unless you've been (through) the sweat, the tears, the family problems, the family struggles, but wondering how you're going to get that HMO, wondering how you're going to get those medical bills. You develop a different mentality and you develop a different look at how the world sees you and how you see the world." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Also true to character

Mitte isn't alone in winning roles that reflect his life: In his recently cancelled sitcom, Michael J. Fox's title character had Parkinson's disease, as he does, and both Glee and American Horror Story feature actresses with Down syndrome.

- Since the Breaking Bad finale, Mitte has played a wheelchair-bound character who suffered a spinal cord injury.
- He says other roles he's taken on include that of a young man with muscular dystrophy and another where he was "a bit mentally unstable."

Zachary Quinto and Brian Cox join TV drama The Slap

Zachary Quinto, the Heroes and Star Trek icon, will co-star with Emmy Award winner Brian Cox in an eight-episode TV drama centred around the admonishment of a troublesome child.

Quinto will play Harry, father of a teen son, "perennially angry but seemingly pleased with his life," as The Hollywood Reporter puts it, and a man who ends up slapping another family's kid.

Cox becomes Manolis, "stern yet magnanimous," a traditional and benevolent patriarch who tends to assume a peacemaking role.

Over the course of its run, the slap in question leads to a conflict of epic proportions as family secrets are dragged out of the closet and the whole affair threatens to destroy Harry and his extended family.

The pair are additions to a cast that already includes Mary-Louise Parker (The West Wing, Weeds) and Peter Sarsgaard (Shattered Glass, The Killing).

Sarsgaard is to play Hector, the main character and host of a social event at which the slap occurs, with Parker as his wife. Cox's Manolis would be Hector's own father.

NBC is to carry the show, having it adapted from an Australian original by scriptwriter Jon Robin Baitz, creator of 2006-2011 series Brothers & Sisters. AFP

Upside Out. Video masterminds release their first new music since 2008, leading up to a full-length album being released Oct. 14

LISA WEIDENFELD
Metro New York

Earlier this summer, music video masterminds OK Go returned with a new creation: a series of optical illusions set to a new song, The Writing's on the Wall.

The song, part of a new EP called Upside Out, is the first new music from the band since their 2008 album, Of the Blue Colour of the Sky. A full-length album, Hungry Ghosts, is due out Oct. 14.

Lead singer Damian Kulash says that's pretty normal for the band, which generally takes about four years to make a new album.

"We take so long making records in part because we're not the fastest songwriters on the planet, but in part because we spend so much time touring and making videos," he explains.

It's apparently pretty complicated to build and operate a massive Rube Goldberg device, as they did for This Too Shall Pass.

A few things have changed about the writing process over the years, though.

Kulash pointed to the band's desire to write more "undirectedly," by which he means letting the music dictate what a song will be about, rather than starting with an idea and working backwards to it.

The result is what Kulash calls a more focused album, despite the more relaxed songwriting method, which he thinks allows for music that's more varied in scope.

"I kind of hate writing lyrics," Kulash admits. "I have so much fun playing with the sounds, and then you wind up with this music, where if things have gone right, it goes in five directions at once. It's something that you can't communicate, or at least I can't communicate verbally."

He points to the way writing the music itself can create a sound with "lust and fury and joy and melancholy all at once." Setting all of that to actual words can mean letting go of some of that feeling.

"When something is both joyful and melancholic at the same time, do you write melancholic lyrics or do you write joyful lyrics?

"Words are so specific. They always have to mean something so literal."

Despite the songwriting challenges, Kulash seems pretty happy with the result.

For those who were big fans of the Blue Colour album, Kulash says the new album "feels like it has a lot of the same sonic textures, but is a much more concise and to-the-point record."

Quoted

Check out this new Toronto singer-songwriter who landed a new deal with Warner Music Canada. With a debut EP entitled Songs for Friends due next month, Helman has been road-testing some of this new material.

Give Us a Kiss/ Nick Cave and the Bad Seeds

Nick's lightly fictionalized new movie, 20,000 Days on Earth — winner of some big awards at Sundance this year — is set for release in a limited run next week. This is another song from the soundtrack. Fantastic.

Scorekeeper/ Michael Feuerstack

The mournful song from this Vancouver/Montreal singer-songwriter is very pleasant, but it's even better when you see the video which is set against a game of "wall ball" shot in an anonymous Montreal gym.

Bowie to release new album

Rock icon David Bowie, who broke a decade of silence with an album last year, will release more new music in November as part of a greatest-hits collection.

The 67-year-old pioneer of glam rock will release a nearly eight-minute song entitled Sue (or In a Season of Crime) recorded with his long-time producer Tony Visconti, his label said this week.

The track will appear on Nothing Has Changed, a career-spanning compilation in editions of two or three CDs or a double-vinyl set.

The compilation will be released on Nov, 17 in Britain and Nov. 18 in the United States.

It marks the first new music for Bowie since March 2013 when he released the album The Next Day, which broke a decade-long silence and won both critical praise and commercial success.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Prenup's the Pitts for Brad — if he cheats, Angie gets the kids

So maybe it took so long for Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt to tie the knot because they were working on their massive, heavily detailed prenup. Star magazine claims to have details on the document, which "was encouraged by their lawyers" and "is the best way to protect their kids," according to a source. And considering the murky circumstances by which Pitt and Jolie first came together, it's maybe not so surprising that the agreement has a pretty stringent infidelity clause. "If Brad gets too serious with another woman while they are married, (Jolie) will get primary custody if they split."

The Word

Searching for a migraine of truth in Kanye's Aussie ER visit

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Kanye West was hospitalized in Australia this week, and depending on what you read, he either had a frightening, life-threatening seizure or it was just a really bad headache and he's fine. "He just suffered a migraine and went to the hospital simply as a precaution," a rep for the rapper says, pointing out that West made it to the stage for a concert just a few hours later. But a woman who was present at the hospital tells Women's Day a much more alarming story. "My daughter was having an MRI. Shortly after it began, security burst in and cleared the area," Loraine Terry says. "Everyone was moved out of the waiting and consulting rooms. We were the only ones left apart from doctors and nurses. We couldn't leave as the MRI wasn't finished. Next thing we knew, Kanye was stretchered in surrounded by security. He had one side of his face covered with something white. We were shocked because it looked so serious. Everyone was massively panicked." So, who's right? It's a trick question — they both are. Because honestly, West would probably have an entire floor of a hospital cleared for a hangnail, so this seems like a proportional response to a migraine for him.

Katy Perry

That's some zesty Diplo Katy's been tucking into

A musical collaboration between Katy Perry and EDM artist Diplo has reportedly spawned something more intimate, as a loose-lipped source close to the singer tells Radar Online that the pair have been spending more quality time together since first cosying up to each other in April. "When Katy and Diplo first hooked up, it was sort of premeditated. But they are very much in lust with each other right now," the pal says. "They are just having a lot of fun right now, which is something that lacked in her previous relationship (with John Mayer). Katy does want kids one day but definitely not right now. She thought that she was going to have kids with John, but that ended when she caught him cheating."

So much for his devotion to Mimi. Nick's looking for a new dream girl already

Well, that was fast. Barely a week after proclaiming his undying love for estranged wife Mariah Carey, Nick Cannon is ready to move on, according to Radar Online. "Nick is so over all of this drama. He is just ready to get back to work and doesn't care what Mariah says about him," a source says. "She is the one who messed it all up, not Nick. He is just ready to start over and find a woman that will treat him right."

Bagels work over-time as noon option

Inspired Lunches Week. These Spicy Chicken Salad Bagels reinvent a classic breakfast staple

RICARDO COOKS
Chef Ricardo
Ricardo Magazine

This recipe makes six sandwiches. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

Ingredients

Spicy Cream Cheese
- 1/2 lb (250 g) cream cheese, softened
- 1 jalapeno, seeded and finely chopped
- 2 green onions, finely chopped
- 1/2 lime, the juice only

Chicken Salad
- 1/2 avocado, diced
- 1/2 lime, the juice only
- 1 cup (250 ml) diced cooked chicken
- 3/4 cup (180 ml) canned corn kernels, drained
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) sour cream
- 1 plum tomato, seeded and diced
- 1 celery stalk, diced
- 1 green onion, finely chopped
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped fresh cilantro
- 5 to 6 drops Tabasco sauce
- Salt and pepper

Assembly
- 6 bagels, toasted if desired
- 1 yellow bell pepper, sliced into thin rings
- 6 Boston lettuce leaves
- Salt and pepper

For years, my daughters complained about the so-called boring sandwiches we made them for lunch. One day, we swapped the bread for tortillas and the results were magical. The next time we opted for a bagel. All of a sudden, lunch was exciting!

And, of course, chicken is always a crowd-pleaser — you can't go wrong.

Spicy Cream Cheese

1. In a bowl, combine all the ingredients with a fork. Season with salt. Keep this mixture refrigerated until you're ready to use it.

Chicken Salad

2. In a bowl, combine the avocado and lime juice. Add the remaining ingredients. Season with salt and pepper. Keep refrigerated.

Assembly

3. Cut the bagels in half horizontally. Spread with the spicy cream cheese. Add two bell pepper slices and a lettuce leaf on one side. Top with the chicken salad. Close the sandwich.

Pour your way into fall

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

While we may be a couple of weeks away from the start of fall, in my neck of the vineyards the crisp temperatures of autumn have arrived way too soon.

As I say adios to summer — and wrap myself in a fluffy duvet at night — I think about wines that reflect the change in season.

Savoury reds, those with robust fruit and a hint of rustic charm, top my list for fall. Northern Italy knows savoury, whether it be the muscular reds from Piedmont's Barolo and Barbaresco or lighter fare from Vento's Valpolicella and Bardolino.

Valpolicella's ripasso wines strike a nice balance between easy-drinking and full-bodied. Made with juice that has soaked with the skins from the grapes that make the powerful Amarone-style wines, they taste as good on their own as they do with spaghetti and meatballs and stew.

Zonin's 2012 Valpolicella Superiore Ripasso ($17.45 - $19.99) has a classic cherry aroma and dark berries and more cherries on the palate. Though dry, there's a soft suggestion of sweet plums that adds to its warming character.

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Wrap up a delicious sandwich

1. Sun-dried tomatoes: In saucepan, combine all ingredients. Bring to boil and cook 2 minutes. Cool and set aside.

2. Spicy mayonnaise: In a bowl, combine the mayonnaise and sambal oelek. Set aside.

3. In a large skillet over medium-high heat, brown the eggplant on both sides in the oil. Season with salt and pepper. Drain on paper towels.

Ingredients

Sun-dried Tomatoes
- 10 oil-packed sun-dried tomato halves, drained
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) rice vinegar
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) honey
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) vegetable oil

Spicy Mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) mayonnaise
- 1/2 tsp (2.5 ml) sambal oelek

Wraps
- 1 small eggplant, cut into 1/4-inch (0.5 cm) thick slices
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) olive oil
- 4 large (9-inch/23 cm) tortillas
- 1 cup (250 ml) shredded cooked chicken
- 1/4 lb (115 g) sliced sharp cheddar
- 12 fresh basil leaves
- 4 romaine lettuce leaves
- Salt and pepper

These Chicken and Sun-dried Tomato Wraps serve four. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

4. On a work surface, place the tortillas. Spread the spicy mayonnaise on the tortillas. Top with the cooked chicken, cheese, eggplant, drained sun-dried tomatoes, basil and lettuce. Roll up tightly and wrap individually in parchment paper. Close to seal. Cut in half.

An international celebration of ideas

Meet your favourite authors at the Writers Festival

It's September and the Ottawa International Writers Festival is getting into full swing.

Lovers of fiction will not want to miss Eleanor Catton, whose novel, The Luminaries, won the Man Booker Prize and the Governor General's Award. She recently said part of her winnings would go towards a grant for writers to read, so her one-on-one event on Sept. 20 and literary luncheon on Sept. 21 are sure to be insightful.

Lovers of science and tech will want to come out on Oct. 8 to hear Douglas Coupland talk about Kitty Clone: Inside Alcatel-Lucent. From fibre wire to mobile technologies, Alcatel-Lucent's role in information technology is so important that if they disappeared tomorrow so would our Internet access. Coupland pushes past the company's reach and asks us to consider how the Internet is shaping us.

What leads a man into politics? Is he born into it, or does he grow into it? Who better to ask than Justin Trudeau. In his memoir, Common Ground, Trudeau narrates his experience from childhood to position of Liberal party leader. Come out Oct. 21 for a chance to hear what makes a leader.

Best of all, tickets for all these events are free for Carleton and uOttawa students.

TROUPE HAS ALL THE RIGHT MOVES

Dance has been given a breath of new life with the wild success of So You Think You Can Dance and Dancing With The Stars. Dancers are standing front and centre as standalone entertainment, and some of the best are coming to Centrepointe Theatres this winter.

In 2012, So You Think You Can Dance and Dancing With The Stars alumni Travis Wall, Nick Lazzarini, Teddy Forance and Kyle Robinson co-founded Shaping Sound, a commercial dance company dedicated to providing audiences access to a greater understanding of contemporary dance through a unique fusion of jazz, modern and hip-hop choreography.

Oxygen chronicled the creation of the company through the docu-series, All the Right Moves, which followed the four choreographers as they tried to establish their company in Los Angeles while also documenting their experiences trying to live together. But this isn't the company's first brush with reality TV — it has deep roots in the popular genre with almost all 14 Shaping Sound dancers appearing on network reality dance shows.

After their time on So You Think You Can Dance and Dancing With The Stars, other opportunities materialized for many of the Shaping Sound dancers on American Idol, Glee, X Factor, the Tonys, the Grammys, the Emmys, and the Oscars. They have also toured with Beyoncé, Katy Perry, Janet Jackson, Lady Gaga, Adele, Rhianna, Kelly Clarkson, Usher, Taylor Swift, and continue to choreograph and perform with major recording artists.

"I did a dance performance on Dancing With The Stars about three years ago," Wall says to Playbill.com about their 2013 summer tour across the U.S.

CONTRIBUTED

"It was something that I choreographed and I hired all my best friends to do it. After we were finished with the performance ... we (thought), 'How can we make this happen every day, all of us dancing together?' We wanted to ... put our work out there and let everyone know that we were going to start working together (professionally)."

After selling out a whirlwind 13-city tour, Shaping Sound returns to the stage on Feb 8, at Centrepointe Theatres. The tour brings the exhilarating collaboration of the latest dance visionaries as they mash up music genres and dance styles in one explosive, commercial dance theatre experience for all ages. With a dynamic mix of energy, emotion and athleticism, the ensemble brings tremendous musicality of movement to each performance.

Baker bringing his magic to Ottawa

Buddy Valastro has been baking up television magic on TLC's Cake Boss since 2009. Now his fans can see him live at Centrepointe Theatres when he brings his unique brand of over-the-top cookery to Centrepointe Theatres this April.

In this live interactive event, the master baker shares the secrets behind his highly popular TV shows and his family at Carlo's Bakery, answers audience questions, and gives exclusive cake and cupcake decorating demonstrations in a high-energy experience. Valastro also invites audience members to join the fun on stage to demonstrate his top tricks for party planning, cake decorating, and making the perfect sweet treats for any occasion.

"Bringing a culinary heavyweight like Buddy Valastro to Ottawa is incredibly exciting for all of us," says David MacDonnell, artistic producer at Centrepointe Theatres. "Part of the mandate of Centrepointe Theatres is to bring unique programming outside of the family, music, and comedy umbrellas to ensure that we truly offer something for everyone."

Life wasn't always so sweet for the Valastro. He took over the family business, Carlo's Bakery, at the age of 17 after the sudden passing of his father. After leaving high school to manage the business, years of hard work paid off with Valastro appearing on the Food Network Challenge, resulting in the wildly successful Cake Boss. Since then, Valastro and his family have been cooking up some of the most intricate and creative cakes for celebrities and local families alike, cementing Carlo's Bakery as a must-see attraction in Hoboken N.J., with lines regularly reaching around the block.

VIP ticket holders can enjoy a behind-the-scenes exclusive post-show reception with Valastro. Only 150 ticket holders will have access to an intimate Cake Boss meet and greet, complete with delicious dessert bar provided by Spin Dessert Café and Bistro, and a Flashpoint Photobooth to capture all the sweet memories.

For more information or tickets, visit centrepointetheatres.com or call the box office at 613-580-2700.

MAKING SCIENCE ENTERTAINING

With cooler weather around the corner, families are already looking for educational, family-friendly entertainment for when the snow flies. This November, prepare to be thrilled with the latest from The Jim Henson Company, Sid the Science Kid Live!, at Centrepointe Theatres.

Based on Preschool Pathways to Science, the preschool science curriculum, Sid the Science Kid and his friends — May, Gabriela and Gerald — come to town to discover the excitement and curiosities of the world around them. With wonders to discover, they set off on a day of excitement and adventure, as they explore their five senses through fun games and experiments, and by asking curious questions and finding fascinating answers.

Tickets for this show and a large selection of family entertainment are available at centrepointetheatres.com or by calling the box office at 613-580-2700.

BIG YEAR FOR LITTLE THEATRE

THE 102nd SEASON

As it enters its 102nd season Tuesday, Ottawa Little Theatre is looking spry.

North America's longest continually running community theatre is in the midst of a five-year, $1-million capital campaign that will see the lobby, auditorium and entrances all get a facelift, as well as adding what's onstage.

"The place hasn't been static for 102 years," says Evan Clark, OLT's marketing and communications director. "We're trying to push what we do forward a little bit, and this season would be indicative of that. This is one of the more contemporary seasons we've ever done."

This includes a production of Bruce Norris' 2012 Tony-winning Clybourne Park (Jan. 13-31).

The curtain goes up on the season with The Perils of Persephone by Canadian playwright Dan Needles (Sept. 16 to Oct. 4), in which a farm family deals with a nuclear spill and — worse — politicos from Ottawa.

"It's a gentle satire about the culture clash between country and city folk," Clark says. "Not to give too much away but a truck believed to be carrying nuclear waste crashes into a farmer's pond, and when the local Reeve calls in the minister of environment for help, the spin doctoring begins much to the dismay of the locals. The script is really a lot of fun."

Full-season subscriptions are still available. For more, visit ottawalittletheatre.com.

Folk festival offers great deal, options

Craft Beer House has free admission and entertainment

This year's Ottawa Folk Festival is considered the best deal in town with the likes of The National and J. Cole on Friday; Blue Rodeo and Neutral Milk Hotel on Saturday; and Joss Stone and The Gaslight Anthem, among others, wrapping things up on Sunday, all for $48.50 or less per night.

And the cost goes down when you buy a pick-three passport.

It's a great deal, but you can't beat the price to get in to the new Craft Beer House — it's free. And so is the entertainment on tap there. There is a Cape Breton Embassy party with some of the world's best fiddlers and East Coast bands on Thursday and Friday, and the Mellotones, a great R&B band from Halifax, on the weekend.

"We're inviting the whole city to attend. It should be a blast," says Mark Monahan, the festival's artistic director. "We're also bringing in a food truck rally for the weekend, a kid zone, and something we call Sessions, featuring interaction among some amazing artists that are slated to perform during the fest."

The free side of the park will also stage a lineup of talent that passersby will not believe is free — all courtesy of the Ottawa Folk Festival at Hog's Back Park, near Mooney's Bay.

Get all the details at ottawafolk.com.

GETTING THERE

Ottawa Folk Festival organizers announced a plan to accommodate the record crowds forecasted for this year's event. Attendance is expected to surpass the 50,000-mark achieved in 2013.

Festival organizers are focusing on a transportation plan that will include free parking at Canada Post, with a free rickshaw shuttle service being provided to ferry fans up Hog's Back Road to the festival site. Paid parking is also available at Vincent Massey Park off Heron Road. This does not include shuttle service.

Another option for getting to the festival is by bicycle. The National Capital Pathway winds through the festival site at Hog's Back Park. Free, secure, bike parking will be available at both ends of the park.

Enjoy the art form of burlesque

While striptease is nothing new to the Capital, modern burlesque has only had a home here for the past decade. As the burlesque of yore evolved into the black-light and mirror-clad stages we know as strip clubs, the demand for the long-lost glamour and tease of burlesque swelled.

"Burlesque is not about just about stripping, it's about the comedy, artistry, and social commentary we incorporate in to strip shows," says Helvetica Bold, Ottawa Burlesque Festival organizer.

"Burlesque is one of the most joyful art forms I've ever known," says Rhapsody Blue, another of the festival's organizers. "It is really quite exuberant in its celebration, its worship even, of movement and freedom and flesh."

In the city that was home to Pandora's Box, Canada's first fully nude burlesque club, it's about time Ottawa has its own burlesque festival.

The Ottawa Burlesque Festival runs Sept. 19-21 with the following events:

- The Dark Side of the Merkin, Sept 19, doors open at 10 p.m. at the Gladstone Theatre, 910 Gladstone Ave.
- Opulence and Oddities, Sept 20, doors open at 6 p.m. at the Bronson Centre Theatre, 211 Bronson Ave.
- Sinners' Brunch, Sept 21, doors open at noon at Cafe Nostalgica, 601 Cumberland St.

Fury searching for elusive road win in Tampa Bay

Following a last-second tying goal last weekend by forward Oliver, the Ottawa Fury FC look to keep their confidence and offensive prowess intact as they travel to Florida for a showdown with the Tampa Bay Rowdies.

The Rowdies, who hold the last NASL playoff spot and are 10 points ahead of ninth-place Ottawa, hope to replicate a 2-0 win over the Fury two weeks ago at TD Place.

Tampa Bay boasts one of the NASL's top offensive units and should prove to be a test for the Fury's NASL Team of the Week goalkeeper Romuald Peiser, who was brilliant in preserving the tie against a strong Carolina team with a 10-save performance.

Tour Championship

Kirk, Horschel tied for lead after the first round

Chris Kirk and Billy Horschel took a big step Thursday toward the biggest payoff in golf.

Both players have already won FedEx Cup playoff events to earn the top two seeds going into the Tour Championship. Playing together in the last group at East Lake, they both made late birdies and were tied for the lead at 4-under 66.

If either of them were to win the Tour Championship, they would capture the FedEx Cup and the $10-million bonus.

Masters champion Bubba Watson was one of four golfers to shoot a 67.

Who's next for U.S.? Not host Spanish team

FIBA World Cup. Americans beat Lithuania to advance to final, but many are let down that Spain won't meet them there

Madrid awaits. Spain doesn't.

The gold-medal matchup seemingly everyone wanted in the FIBA World Cup — maybe even some U.S. players — won't be happening. Spain was upset in the quarter-finals, ending the predicted No. 1 vs. No. 2 game on Sunday on Spain's home court.

"I think that's one of the reasons why we came over here, was to play them," U.S. guard Derrick Rose said. "Too bad we're not playing them and hopefully we go out there in our next game and play hard and just know that we're there for a reason."

The Americans held up their end, moving within a victory of repeating as world champions for the first time with a 96-68 victory over Lithuania on Thursday night.

James Harden scored all of his 16 points in the lopsided third quarter of a near carbon copy of the Americans' quarter-final victory over Slovenia, when he awoke from a scoreless first half to help turn a close game into a blowout in a split second.

The Americans will face France or Serbia on Sunday, believing either could provide the test that was expected from Spain.

"Whoever we play, France or Serbia, is going to be a great game," Harden said. "Obviously they're playing there for a reason, we're not going to take anyone lightly, which we haven't thus far, and go there and just have fun playing basketball."

They will arrive as even heavier favourites following Spain's stunning loss to France on Wednesday. With their veteran experience and near misses against the U.S. in the last two Olympic gold-medal games, the hosts were considered the team with the best chance to beat the Americans.

Talk of a U.S.-Spain final had lasted as long as the tournament, and though the Americans tried to ignore it, guard Stephen Curry acknowledged that was impossible.

"I don't think we're disappointed, or wished we played a certain team," Curry said. "We're happy to take care of our business, which was what we set out to do, which was make it to the finals, and whoever matches up against us on Sunday, we'll be ready for." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rule changes. Diving will draw harsher punishment

Repeat offenders for diving and their coaches will face harsher punishments as part of a series of rule changes the NHL announced.

Under rules in effect for the upcoming season, a player will receive a warning for his first offence, be fined $2,000 US for his second, $3,000 for his third, $4,000 for his fourth and $5,000 each for his fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth embellishment penalties.

His coach will also get fined.

The goal is to cut down on embellishment.

Back at '100 per cent.' Ovechkin says his knee is healed for new season

Washington Capitals' captain Alex Ovechkin says the right knee he injured at the hockey world championship is fine and he's been working out for the past month or so.

Speaking to reporters Thursday, about a week before training camp opens, the three-time NHL MVP said, "My knee doesn't bother me.... Everything feels fine and 100 per cent."

He says it took about two months for his knee to heal after he took a hit at the world championship in May.

The Capitals missed the playoffs for the first time in seven years last season.

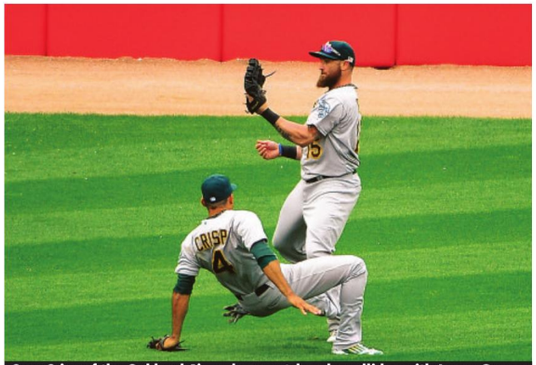
A's spectacular slump: There's no end in sight

Free fall. 'We're playing for our lives now,' says Melvin after 11th loss in 14 games



Coco Crisp of the Oakland A's makes a catch as he collides with Jonny Gomes, standing, on Thursday in Chicago, Ill. DAVID BANKS/GETTY IMAGES

Their chances of winning the AL West have pretty much slipped away. Now, the Oakland Athletics need to score some runs before they lose a playoff spot altogether.

The A's continued their free-fall Thursday, when Chris Sale bested Scott Kazmir in a brilliant pitchers' duel. Light-hitting Marcus Semien homered for the only run and the Chicago White Sox won 1-0.

The A's lost for the 11th time in 14 games. Their lead in the AL wild-card race dwindled to one game over Detroit and 1-1/2 over Seattle, both of which were idle.

"We're playing for our lives now," manager Bob Melvin conceded. "I mean, that's just the way it is. We put ourselves in this position."

Once leading the division, the A's began the day nine games behind the Los Angeles Angels. Oakland starts a three-game showdown in Seattle on Friday night.

Facing Sale, Oakland posed its only threat in the eighth, when Jed Lowrie singled and Alberto Callaspo drew a two-out walk. Coco Crisp bounced out to end the inning.

"Right up there," Lowrie said when asked where Sale ranked among starting pitchers. "Off-hand, I can't give you a number, but he's one of the better ones in the game."

Yet the A's have had to tip their caps too many times since the All-Star break. They've scored more than three runs only 15 times in the 39 games since slugger Yoenis Cespedes was traded to Boston on July 31.

Melvin suggested his team might need to get back to its loose ways again.

"We've been two different teams — the one that played through July and the one that's at this point right now," he said.

"We're trying as a staff to stay positive. At times, I get upset. At times, you have to be supportive. Today they were trying. They were trying as hard as they could. Sometimes maybe you have to try a little easier," he said.

"It's a tough run that we're facing right now," Kazmir said. "The only way to get out of it is to stay positive and keep battling." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rice. U.S. Senators press NFL for zero tolerance on domestic violence

Sixteen female senators from both parties called on the National Football League Thursday to adopt a zero-tolerance policy on domestic violence.

The senators said they were "shocked and disgusted" by a video showing former Baltimore Ravens running back Ray Rice punching his then-fiancée and knocking her unconscious.

"Tragically, this is not the only case of an NFL player allegedly assaulting a woman even within the last year," the senators wrote in a letter to NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell.

The senators said they were deeply concerned that a new policy Goodell announced last month would let a player commit a violent act and return to the field after a six-game suspension.

"If you violently assault a woman, you shouldn't get a second chance to play football in the NFL," the letter said.

U.S. Senator Barbara Boxer GETTY IMAGES

Democratic Sen. Barbara Boxer of California put the letter together. It's signed by 14 Democrats and two Republicans. Four other female senators — two Democrats and two Republicans — did not sign the letter, which Boxer's office said was put together quickly after the Rice video was released earlier this week. Achilles tear ends Mathis' season

Robert Mathis' season is over before it even began.

Less than two weeks after Mathis started serving a four-game suspension for violating the league's performance-enhancing substance policy, coach Chuck Pagano said team doctors confirmed their worst fears: The 2013 NFL sacks champion tore his Achilles tendon during a private workout in Atlanta. Van Gaal trusts Falcao to turn things around

Just one practice session in the company of Radamel Falcao has convinced Manchester United manager Louis van Gaal that the Colombia striker is the player to turn around the team's flagging fortunes.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
If you need to ask someone for a financial favour, do so now while they are in a generous mood. When it comes to creative endeavors don't sell yourself short.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
A rival may appear to have an advantage because they are prepared to use dishonest methods but their tactics will rebound on them.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
With Mars moving into your opposite sign you may find that minor problems loom a lot larger than before. You'll find ways to deal with them.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
This should be a day to remember. New friendships will be made with ease and existing relationships will improve dramatically. The more you open up to others, the more they will open up to you.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Any bad feelings you have about a career move you are planning to make will disappear over the next 24 hours. The only thing worth fearing is fear itself.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Your confidence may dip today but it's nothing to worry about. As Mars moves into one of the more sensitive areas of your chart, keep your head down.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
No matter how ambitious a Libra you may be there are more important things in life than material success, and today you will be reminded what they are.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
This will be a day of fun but make the most of it because Mars will be disrupting things over the weekend. If there is something you can do to reduce chances of disorder, do it now.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Come the weekend you will be free to express yourself in ways that may not have been possible before. However, you will also have to exercise a certain amount of self-discipline.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
There comes a time when the old must give way to the new and according to the planets you are approaching that time. Don't worry. Changes are good and just what you need.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
If you feel drained, you must take it as a sign that you need to slow down. A short rest now will do wonders for your energy levels during the early part of next week.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You need to give up on a personal vendetta. Confrontations like this are not worth it. Let it go. You'll feel better for it.
